The Asian Development Bank (ADB), in partnership with Stanford University's Natural Capital Project, will be conducting a three-day hybrid workshop on "Transforming Policy and Investment through Mainstreaming

Natural Capital Assessment and Accounting," 7–9 November 2023 at the ADB Headquarters in Manila, Philippines and online via Zoom.

This workshop aims to convene technical and policy leaders from developing member countries (DMCs), experts from ADB and multilateral development banks, Stanford University's Natural Capital Project, and other international practitioners to discuss natural capital and its ecosystems; come to a common understanding of innovation and finance solutions as important mechanisms for natural capital conservation; and co-develop natural capital approaches and finance solutions that inform policy and investment for people and nature, and further build capacity and community for their implementation.

Interested participants can register on or before 23 October 2023 through this link: bit.ly/ADBStanford2023Workshop-RF2.

Download the provisional agenda here: bit.ly/3PQSNCu or visit the website for more information.
